EDITORIAL

Broadsword 54

In the Editorial comment in the last issue of Broadsword we drew attention to the shifting political climate in both Britain and Europe, the underlying direction of many countries is a gradual move away from the liberal, leftist position and is becoming more nationalist in tone.

Here in Britain the left-wing, neo-liberal dominated news media is being thrown into a state of near hysteria by the idea that racial Nationalism might begin a revival in British politics. Since the beginning of 2017 most mainstream television news channels and national newspapers have carried some kind of “shock-horror revelations” about the supposed threat of ‘Far-Right extremists’. The BBC regional news for Yorkshire and Humberside has used every possible excuse to remind viewers about the death of the Labour MP Jo Cox including interviews with her husband and sister as part of the BBC coverage of the Westminster terrorist attack in March 2017.

As National Socialists and British racial Nationalists we must stand firm in the face of this assault on our right to believe in an alternative future for our race and nation.

The neo-liberals and multi-culturalist fellow travellers who are esconced in Britain’s mainstream political parties, civil service, local government, education, media and the police are desperate to prevent their vision of a multi-racial, diverse, multi-faith, multi-cultural society being halted and reversed. The metropolitan centred liberal democracy they have worked so hard to shape since the heady days of the 1960’s is showing signs of strain and they will use whatever methods they can employ, both legal and quasi-legal, to PREVENT a renaissance of racially based politics in Britain and Europe.

The Marxist dream of open borders, of a One-World population of ‘citizens of nowhere’ has come so close for them, the migrant crisis and flood of ‘refugees and Third World asylum-seekers into Britain and across the continent of Europe has accelerated the kind of internationalist society they want to create. Until. Until the ordinary people, the indigenous people of Europe and the United Kingdom, began to object, began to say No!

Over the next few years we can expect a regular avalanche of multi-culturalist propaganda, a tidal wave of press ‘exposes’ and manufactured stories highlighting individual ‘racists’ and ‘Far-Right extremists’ in order to isolate and discourage those NS and Nationalist activists who are spearheading the counter culture.

We must stand firm and counter attack their distortions of the truth with as much propaganda of our own, propaganda of all types ; we must get our message out and refuse to be silenced. British National Socialists are the political dissidents and counter culture of the modern era.

BROADSWORD MAGAZINE and the NS PRESS UK

Once again the publication of Broadsword has fallen behind intended targets and once again the production of this publication has been beset by technical and financial difficulties. The Broadsword desk has suffered more problems of failing computer hardware and software; replacing ageing computers and purchasing reliable publishing software programmes is not cheap and purchasing, installing and familiarising ourselves with new, professional replacements is time consuming and frustrating.

We ask our regular readers and supporters to please be patient with us and help us to raise the necessary funds to reach our target of returning Broadsword to being a quarterly publication.

Thank You.

THE WEREWOLF COLUMN

December 2016 - two pieces of legislation have been enacted by the British Government.

One: - a 'legal definition' of Anti-Semitism in British law.

Two: - The banning, that is the legal proscription of the pro-NS organisation National Action.

There is little doubt that a deal will have been done behind closed doors on the latter piece of legal fixings. Those professional anti-racists closely connected to the Labour Party have been granted one of their wishes, and the Government will want something in return; "Quid Pro Quo" as Dr. Hannibal Lecter would say.

The mainstream Left and the Labour Party have for some time been agitating behind closed doors at Westminster for some kind of gesture by the Government in the wake of the murder of the Labour MP Jo Cox in the Summer of 2016. So the Prime Minister and the Home Office have effectively killed two birds with one stone. They have killed off one highly visible 'racist' street organisation and have also created a new definition in law which has long been demanded by the Zionist lobby and the main Jewish organisations like the Board of Deputies of British Jews, a clarification of what constitutes 'Anti-Semitism' in British courts.

The Government will also have bought the co-operation of the key movers and shakers in the assorted anti-racist organisations by giving them the prohibition of a "Far-Right/neo-nazi organisation", in return for a muted response when the Government begins its long awaited moves against illegal immigration and the needed rejection of asylum-seekers and refugees.

Those who provide the financial and logistical support for large scale public campaigns on behalf of refugees and immigrants will be noticeably silent and non-supportive of any pro-migrant campaigns when the Government finally acts. Those key players will have been bought off by the 'quid-pro-quo' of banning the hated National Action.

Of course the usual Left-wing loud-mouths will sound off very publicly in defence of refugees and illegal immigrants, or the "undocumented migrants" as the Left prefer to call them.

But the main drivers for such neo-liberal and Marxist protests will remain silent and strangely absent from the fore-front of any campaigns or demonstrations.

This situation is a 'Win Win' for the Home Office on all levels. The Government has removed a small, but noisy and media high-profile 'Far-Right' organisation, a law and order point scored with the Labour Party, the Liberal Democrats, key Jewish organisations, professional anti-racist groups and with most Left-wing political groups. In addition the Home Office can turn to UK based Muslim organisations and point out that it does not just ban Islamist organisations, but also acts against those evil White racists too. The professional complainers at groups like 'Tell MAMA' will no doubt be delighted that National Action is now proscribed, effectively removing one of the most active thorns in its flesh.

Plus the Government and the Home Secretary have the added bonus of firing a shot across the bows of all UK-based pro-White Nationalist and racial Nationalist organisations, a warning shot that they could be next (including ourselves at British Movement and Broadsword magazine). This kind of State oppression appeals directly to the organisations of the extreme-Left as it fits in exactly with their Marxist -Leninist or Trotskyist agenda, the actual banning and proscription of political opponents. So even self-styled 'Human Rights' organisations like 'Liberty' and the UK branch of Amnesty International will remain silent on this act of State removal of political expression. For the neo-liberal mindset the freedom of political expression, action or thought does not apply to "racists and fascists".

Challenging the Multi-Culturalists and Their Attempts to Undermine British Society Through Social Engineering

The Multi-culturalists hate the concept of 'White Flight' from urban areas.

British Movement will mobilise resistance in White Working-class neighbourhoods against enforced 'multi-racial housing programmes'.

AS BRITISH MOVEMENT BUILDS UP THE MESSAGE OF WHITE RESISTANCE THE STATE AND THE LEFT-WING OPPOSITION FIGHT TO CENSOR OUR ON-LINE OUTPUT

As 2016 came to a close and 2017 got underway British Movement experienced a rush of official sanctions against BM Facebook sites and message pages. It seems that Facebook was only too quick to respond to even anonymous requests to close down legitimate criticism of immigration, refugees and multi-culturalism.

It seems that even the reporting of genuine news of ethnic minority criminality and refugee rioting was enough to have sites blocked or suspended for telling the truth.

Illustrated below is an example of just one example from February 2017 when Facebook shut down the Facebook pages for Central Belt BM Fife in Scotland.

Advertising such as this re-inforces multi-culturalism and gives the wrong message to children and young people that inter-racial relationships are accepted by everyone and is normal life.

Such images insult those of us who are opposed to multi-culturalism and do not represent the kinds of relationships that we want to see portrayed on TV or in company advertising.

Most of such advertising depicts White women with black partners, very few show White men with black or Asian partners.

What exactly are these advertising companies trying to say?

The Halifax Bank is one offender, as is the Santander advertisement (shown on the opposite page), but there are many others including one of the major furniture retailers which regularly illustrates its television advertising with racially mixed couples, almost always a black man with a white wife or girlfriend.

Who are those people in the advertising agencies who design such output?

Twenty years ago such advertising would have generated wide spread rejection of the company products, Have the White British public been so brain-washed by a multi-cultural media that they now accept these representations without complaint? The time has come to take a stand against these images and ideas in advertising.

Refuse to accept the race mixers view of modern British life - rapists, child-molesters, paedophiles, sex offenders, the grooming gangs!

It's time to get harsh and deal out real justice for their victims.

Rotherham - January 2017

Another grooming gang sentenced to imprisonment at Sheffield Crown Court, but very little media coverage outside South Yorkshire. Once again the 'groomers' and rapists were Asian men, once again the victims were under age, vulnerable White British girls. How many more such trials must there be?

All these girls were the victims of multi-culturalism, victims of a multi-racial society where the Police, Social Services and local authorities looked the other way or avoided taking action in order not to be seen as "racist" or in any way threatening 'community relations'.

The Jay Report proved beyond doubt that key figures within the local Asian communities knew what was going on but chose to do nothing or say nothing because the girls were White British and as such were seen as worthless.

The prison terms in these grooming gang cases need to be much harsher, longer prison terms followed by deportation of the offenders and their families and dependants to their countries of origin.

No matter if the rapists have been granted British citizenship or are second or third generation immigrants born in the United Kingdom. By their crimes they have forfeit their rights to remain in Britain and our country is well rid of them.

BMWD will campaign for harsher sentences for all rapists and sex-offenders.

The time has come to get severe with paedophiles, child pornographers and other perverts.

Knife Crime and teenage stabbings, black youths killing black youths in a spate of recent murders.

Black school age boys are stabbing to death other black school age boys on a frequent and frightening rate of lawlessness.

In the "Evening Standard" of January 25th 2017 there were two reports on knife crime; one reported on the trial of a 15 year old killer who had stabbed to death 17 year old Fola Orebiyi in Notting Hill in July 2016.

the second report was on the fatal stabbing on January 23rd of a 15 year old school boy Quamari Barnes, knifed to death outside Capital City Academy in Willesden after being attacked at the school bus stop by another teenager.

IS LONDON A LOST CAUSE FOR BRITISH RACIAL NATIONALISM?

Many consider that the Greater London area has now become so heavily colonised by non-whites, and the White British are officially a racial minority in London, that London is a lost cause.

At a recent pan-Nationalist meeting in Hull, the British Movement National Secretary stated his belief that although London was now heavily colonised and many boroughs are lost to our people for the present time, we must not consider London as a lost cause. We must continue to be politically active across all of Greater London as a gesture of support for the White British minority trapped within those districts. We have to consider the present situation as only temporary and our continued activity in London is a symbol of 'No Surrender' to multi-culturalism. Our attitude has to be that our capital city will not be forever alien territory, one day we will not only have our country back, but we will take London back too.

SOME TIMES YOU HAVE TO FACE FACTS

Once again it seems that the Metropolitan Police have upset a section of the black community by the use of stop and search powers.

This time the incident took place in central London, in the area around Piccadilly and Leicester Square.

A Met police patrol car pulled over a Bentley being driven by a black DJ on his way to making a promotional video for a night club. In the car were some of his associates, also black males.

As is so often the case these days, one of the occupants of the car recorded everything on his mobile phone and the footage was posted on YouTube, before eventually being presented to the IPCC (Independent Police Complaints Commission) as evidence of police 'racism' and discrimination against black people.

The driver of the hired Bentley was a certain night club DJ rejoicing in the stage name of 'DMO Deejay'.

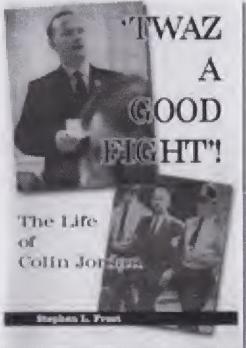

The problem for this icon of urban black culture is that the Metropolitan Police operate on the facts as they see them. One of the Met officers involved in stopping DMO Deejay politely explained to him, "This isn't racist, it's a fact."

Predominantly, the criminal profile of people who do it (commit robberies in the Piccadilly area) are black people."

The entire episode lasted only 15 minutes and was also recorded on camera by the police officers involved.

As one of the Police officers stated on film; "So naturally, if you see a car full of black lads, maybe dressed in gangster-style clothing or whatever, when they're driving down there, they are getting stopped."

Propaganda actions spark media scare stories

Whenever British Movement activists open up a campaign in a new area it does not take long for the local news media to become interested and inevitably the left-leaning journalists at the news desk set out to generate some 'shock horror' story with carefully crafted responses from local anti-racists and 'rent-a-quote' politicians.

So it was in February and March 2015 when BM activists in the Central Belt of Scotland began a series of propaganda actions mostly with stickers and mini-posters.

First of all were newspaper and on-line reports in 'The Courier - Fife' on March 8th 2017 which ran an illustrated article by a reporter called Craig Smith under the banner headline, "Concern as Fife targeted by Far right fascist propaganda" The fairly small scale and localised propaganda actions had been limited to a handful of towns and this apparent assault on the wonderful multi-cultural towns of central Scotland generated an over-heated reaction from reporters keen to display their own anti-racist credentials and the supposed distress caused to their neo-liberal readership. On the same day as the Courier story broke, this threat to local diversity and alleged community cohesion was also given air time on Forth radio reports.

There were the inevitable references to "hate-filled propaganda" and the usual misinformed background history of British Movement provided no doubt by some London based 'anti-fascist' organisation.

There were the usual references to White Supremacy and the BM Sunwheel was referenced as "the infamous neo-Nazi 'sunwheel' logo".

An almost identical story surfaced several days later in the pages of the Dunfermline Press, where equally shocked and dismayed locals reacted to the appearance of BM propaganda on the town's streets. For reasons best known to both newspapers they ran the same colour photograph of a

BM sticker and mini-poster on a bus shelter, clearly showing all the wording and contact details.

As always in such cases the news paper contacted the police for a reaction and true to form a suitably anti-racist officer could be quoted to express concern and a determination to deal with the perceived threat.

Police Scotland: Chief Superintendent Colin Gall divisional commander for Fife, stated that "Posters such as these promote racism and intolerance, neither of which we will tolerate in Fife."

Freedom of speech and political expression not an issue in Fife then?

National Socialism: THE GREAT IDEA

Building the British National Socialist Future

In Broadsword magazine these articles on the theme of National Socialism, The Great Idea, we have sought to stress that National Socialism as an ideology is not locked in time, it is not set permanently in the first half of the 20th Century, it is an ever changing, evolving, developing, organic ideology which keeps pace with the shifting patterns of 21st Century politics and economics, but does not lose touch with the underpinning ideological foundations.

" We believe in the importance of our cultural and biological heritage. To the memory of our ancestors and the future of our kind, we solemnly pledge to fulfill the moral obligation we conceive as our destiny." (Quoted in 'The Sunwheel' November 1974. - Colin Jordan archives)

British National Socialism, faces a unique set of circumstances in this the second decade of the 21st Century. In order to challenge the globalists, internationalists and multi-culturalists needs a change in public attitudes, a shift in the thinking of the White British population.

In the mid-1990's Colin Jordan set out his ideas on how National Socialism needed to respond to the modern situation in his periodic bulletin 'Gothic Ripples'. Looking towards a long-term evolution of change and political campaigning, Colin Jordan asked the question "What is to be done?"

This was a question aimed primarily at his British readership, but was also directed at his international readership, seeking to prompt all his readers to consider how their own national perspective and situation could be challenged and re-directed by effective ideological campaigns.

Colin Jordan had long held the belief that British society had become so degraded and damaged by mass Third World immigration, socialist and neo-liberal political interference and social engineering, that a complete revolution of politics, personal lifestyle, economics and culture was required to totally reshape British society and to undo the degeneration of the British way of life.

Colin Jordan argued that British National Socialism would bring total change in the form of, "Revolutionary Folkish politics and radical economic and social reforms."

The Old Order had to be completely swept away and a radical National Socialist New Order had to take its place, there could be no compromises, no half measures, it had to be total change. There can be no accommodation of the liberal ideas which led to a multi-racial, cultural and political pluralism.

In the past, British Nationalism has sought to bring gradual or partial change to British politics, largely by campaigning against immigration and by seeking to bring change through the electoral system. The argument has always been to turn around Britain's decline by the influence of elected local councillors and eventually by elected Members of Parliament. Change would be brought about by the influence exerted by sufficient numbers of elected Nationalist representatives working within the existing system.

For many years, it has been the considered opinion of British Movement that such an approach within the rigged British electoral system will never see success. British Movement believes that change on the scale needed cannot be made by becoming part of, and working through a corrupt, defective system.

Change has to come from outside the political mainstream, through a grassroots mass movement, a counter-culture which is firmly based on ideological foundations, and is not contaminated by association with or involvement in the political mainstream.

British Movement operates as an extra-parliamentary organisation, seeking to exert influence by becoming a large, grass roots movement, campaigning as a National Socialist pressure group, offering an alternative lifestyle, offering a broad base National Socialist counter culture.

The rejection of multi-culturalism and all aspects of a multi-racial society is just part of this programme. A counter culture must have many branches to its influence and the development and expansion of the growing NS alternative has to be the primary objective.

As Colin Jordan stated in 'Gothic Ripples', first revolutionise yourself, then revolutionise society.

In 2017 the raw material for creating this process of revolutionary change exists within British society, as many leftist political movers and shakers have correctly identified, there is a large section of the British White working-class and a smaller proportion of the White British middle-class who have become disillusioned with the liberal democratic political system, feel disconnected from a political process that is dominated by a Westminster based metropolitan elite, and are decidedly at odds with the nature of a multi-cultural society.

These people are numbered not merely in hundreds of thousands, but in millions.

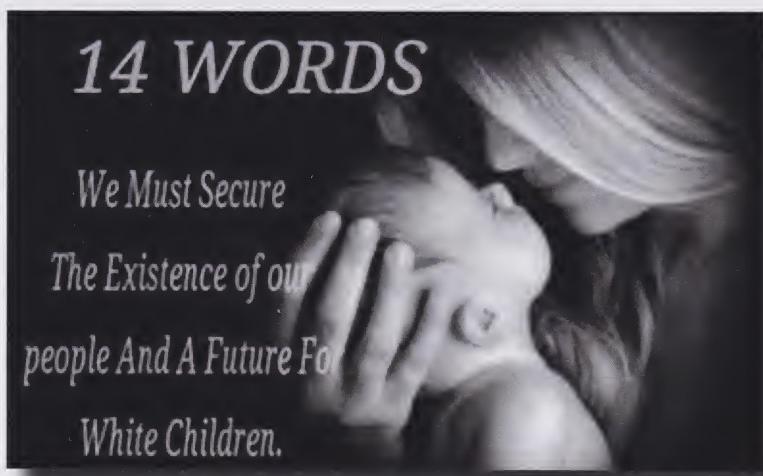

The great shock experienced by the neo-liberal mainstream parties came with the result of the 'Brexit' Referendum in June 2016 and has continued to reverberate through British politics since. Immigration, the refugee crisis and the migrant invasion of Europe motivated much of the 17.4 million votes to Leave the European Union.

British Movement argues that if a sizeable portion of those who voted for Brexit can be swayed by racial Nationalist and National Socialist propaganda, then the movement towards a rejection of multi-culturalism and permanent political change can begin.

The resistance to a multi-racial Britain is growing with every fresh report on illegal immigration, every horror story from the refugee 'Jungle' camps in France, every refugee crime story from Germany, Sweden or Italy, and periodic riots in parts of France dominated by 'un-documented' non-white migrants.

This growing level of White disaffection within British society provides fertile ground for the National Socialist message that race should be the prime consideration for citizenship and nationality.

BRITISH NATIONAL SOCIALIST REFLECTIONS ON THE CANTLE REPORT

Discussed elsewhere in this issue of Broadsword magazine are the details of a report on ethnic segregation, divided communities and 'White Flight' from areas of high 'ethnic diversity'.

For mainstream politicians the unsettling findings of the Cantle Report on British social cohesion, initiated by the then Conservative Prime Minister David Cameron, and released in November 2016, show that ordinary White British families do not want to live in urban centres where they are the 'ethnic minority'. A clear rejection of multi-culturalism. Not only that, but the areas colonised by large numbers of non-Europeans also do not want to live in multi-ethnic neighbourhoods, they want to live in areas dominated by their own specific ethnic and religious community.

The growing ethnic divide in British urban centres is affirmation of National Socialist arguments for racial separation and the preservation of White communities, traditions, heritage and culture.

A key tool in building recognition of National Socialist principles amongst the unpoliticised White British population who are rejecting multi-culturalism and a multi-racial society is the use of simple, easily absorbed slogans that reflect NS thinking.

THE BRITISH IDENTITY

THE IMPORTANCE OF OUR ANCESTRAL ROOTS

OUR ANCESTORS

The multi-culturalists in Britain hate our traditions and our sense of history, they desperately seek to re-write our festivals and folk celebrations, anything that smacks of national pride, folk heritage and ancient customs has to be dismantled, re-written and re-branded to meet the 'needs' of a multi-cultural society.

Traditional festivals and celebrations are considered to be too focussed on White British heritage, the multi-culturalists see them as an obstacle to diversity and excluding participation by non-whites.

Annual events such as the York Viking Festival, the Eisteddfod in North Wales, the many local parades on St George's Day in England, these are all festivities that the neo-liberalists and their leftist fellow-travellers want to reshape and re-brand so that non-whites can take part.

TV news channels zoom in on a handful of Asian 'English' cricket fans wearing St George t-shirts, a black man is encouraged to dress up as a 'Viking' to take part in the Viking festival parade through the streets of York and African dancers and black American gospel choirs are invited to take part in the Eisteddfod. Over time the multi-culturalists erode those traditional events and subvert them into a meaningless assembly of different ethnic traditions and displays of non-European cultures.

Meanwhile the mass media and international companies work to eradicate the true face of British and European traditions.

It is a sad reflection of the impact of globalist mass entertainment that most White British youngsters think that the god Thor is a character in a series of films based on Marvel comics. Even the world of Norse mythology has been re-cast as multi-racial, in the Marvel film version of Asgard Heimdall, the guardian of the Rainbow Bridge is portrayed by a black American actor.

In one act of casting the film insults and undermines the sagas and mythology of Northern and Western Europe, a multi-culturalist blow against the Folk religions of our ancestors and those modern followers of the old beliefs.

ST. GEORGE'S DAY PARADE,
NOTTINGHAM
APRIL 23rd, 2017

These images (left & right) from Nottingham demonstrate why the leftists and neo-liberalists hate this great English tradition. The anti-racists think that the traditional Crusader image of St George is 'offensive to Muslims and other non-Christians. They also believe that such events exclude non-whites and are what anti-racists term "hideously White".

OUT OF AFRICA - WE DON'T THINK SO.....

One of the standard statements by anti-racists and neo-liberalists is, "How can people be racist when the Human Race evolved out of Africa?"

The concept that Africa is the cradle of humanity is just a theory, not a scientific fact, but it is a theory that has been enthusiastically embraced by left-wing and liberal academics ever since the late 1940's and 1950's.

Unfortunately for the 'Out of Africa' supporters, not all the world's scientific community, especially archeologists and anthropologists share this vision. In China, Japan and other parts of the Far East there is a deep reluctance to believe that all early humans developed from a single population in East Africa and spread out across the planet.

The 'Out of Africa' theory is very much wishful thinking by committed liberal and left-wing thinkers, a theory frequently pushed in educational films and TV documentaries, but it is based on very sparse evidence and ignores or rejects other possibilities.

Indeed whenever an alternative theory is expressed, the opposition to a different explanation for the evolution of human beings is treated with great hostility.

Consider this.... it is now an established scientific fact that modern humans who are of European heritage carry genetic markers linking them to the early European humanoids the Neanderthals. People of pure African (negroidal) heritage do not carry the Neanderthal genetic marker.

THE GREAT TASK AHEAD

The Lesson We Take From Recent Elections in Europe and Britain

The recent crop of national and local government elections in Austria, the Netherlands, the local elections in the United Kingdom and the presidential elections in France, have all served to reinforce the British Movement (British National Socialist Movement) strategy on not taking part in the electoral process.

British Movement stands by the strategy that elections at whatever level are a 'rigged game' and that BM/BNSM will not consider re-entering British elections until there has been a major shift in the electoral landscape and the Movement has the necessary grassroots support, mass membership and resources to even consider standing candidates.

In 2016 the Presidential elections in Austria were the first indicator as to how the globalists and the neo-liberalists were going to react to a populist/nationalist candidate.

There was a wide spread hostile media coverage against Norbert Hofer, the leader of the FPO, across Western Europe, echoed in Britain, especially by the BBC and left-wing newspapers.

The media hysteria against Hofer reached levels unseen since 1945, journalist after journalist called for Austrian voters to not only reject the FPO candidate, but to put aside personal politics and to vote 'tactically' to ensure that Hofer was defeated at the ballot box.

The political Left have fallen back on a strategy developed in the 1930's, the idea of a "Popular Front", whereby all the assorted political organisations representing Left-wing and liberal political agendas, (they laughingly refer to themselves as 'Progressive politics') set aside their ideological differences and join forces to campaign and vote against the single National Socialist/Nationalist/Fascist/Populist, party or candidate to ensure that the bulk of votes goes against their opponent.

In the modern world such elements also have widespread media influence and the financial backing of such wealthy 'international philanthropists' as George Soros. Their resources are almost unlimited. This was well illustrated in early 2017 in the Netherlands, where Geert Wilders and the Party of Freedom represented the opposition to multiculturalism and the globalist agenda of the European Union. The campaign against Geert Wilders mirrored that of the anti-Hofer campaign in Austria in the previous year. Nevertheless, although Geert Wilders did not secure electoral victory, they increased their vote, increased the number of Freedom Party MP's, and yet the media trumpeted a great victory against Geert Wilders, and claimed that populism in Western

Propaganda, Propaganda, Propaganda

Getting the British Movement message out in the modern era.

(Observations and opinions by Steve Frost, British Movement National Secretary)

A version of this article originally appeared as a Commentary in the British Movement
South East London bulletin - New Awakening

"The Truth is the greatest enemy of the State."

Dr. Josef Goebbels.

Colin Jordan

At the British Movement Annual General Meeting on Saturday October 29th 2016, my key concern for our Movement's future direction was the generation and distribution of propaganda.

Publications such as "Broadsword" magazine, the occasional BM newspaper "The Emblem" and the BM South East London bulletin "New Awakening" are an important tool in building as wide a range of propaganda and publications as possible. These are early days, but every journey begins with small steps and as British National Socialists in the opening decades of the 21st Century we recognize that we are at the beginning of a long term struggle.

In this commentary I will be quoting and taking the lead from the writings of Colin Jordan and Dr. William Pierce, as well as more significant 20th Century figures of the National Socialist struggle.

As BM founder Colin Jordan often said, skillful deployment of propaganda and carefully staged publicity stunts will gather interest and coverage way beyond the numbers of a small organisation. Rather than fritter away our scarce and hard won funds on un-winnable election campaigns, we should focus the bulk of our spending on the development and propagation of propaganda of all kinds, taking advantage of every kind of media outlet, making inroads into every corner of internet and social media as well as producing good quality and eye-catching propaganda materials and publications of the traditional kind.

To quote the American White nationalist Dr William Pierce, interested in our ideas and who are open-minded, we can give them editorials and documentaries, but when we are trying to get our ideas into the heads of people whose interests don't extend much beyond their sex lives and their bank accounts and who always have accepted as face value whatever they saw on television or read in the newspapers, we must do more."

Above all else, the intention is to achieve as wide an audience as possible for our ideas, to develop influence and to maintain a consistent stream of the British National Socialist message across the country. To output information and opinion to the general public that is easily understood and repeats a baseline position on every key political and social issue.

We must ensure that even the most hardened opponents recognise our core values and understand our slogans such as "14 Words".

British Movement is intent on spreading its range of political campaigning topics as far as possible, emphasising the 'socialism' in National Socialism and turning our attention beyond the traditional focus on immigration and race related issues, as one senior BM organiser has said, "We must wage war on every front we can. There must be hundreds of local and regional social issues we can infiltrate and exploit (on BM blog

YOUTH

The Great Challenge for British National Socialism in the 21st Century.

This article follows on from a previous discussion in Broadsword issue 52 around the subject of building a British National Socialist Youth Movement.

There is a real need to address the issue of building an British NS Youth Movement in the wake of the void created by British Government's legal proscription of the pro-NS group National Action; the increased government pressure through the 'Prevent' programme to deter and dissuade White British teenagers from becoming involved in racial Nationalist politics, and the ongoing shift within popular culture and education to convince and confuse White British children and teenagers that multi-culturalism is a positive direction for British society and the distortion of history that pretends that Britain has always been a multi-racial society.

In part this article will draw up British Movement internal documentation around the development of the British Movement Youth Section 'Young Wolf' and will also draw upon and update a booklet originally prepared and published by Colin Jordan in 1988 as part of his proposed National Socialist Vanguard project. The document was written and drafted by the Colin Jordan supporter Paul O'Brien. This was a short publication of less than ten pages, the content is a little dated now, but nevertheless contains some useful indicators of the direction that needs to be taken.

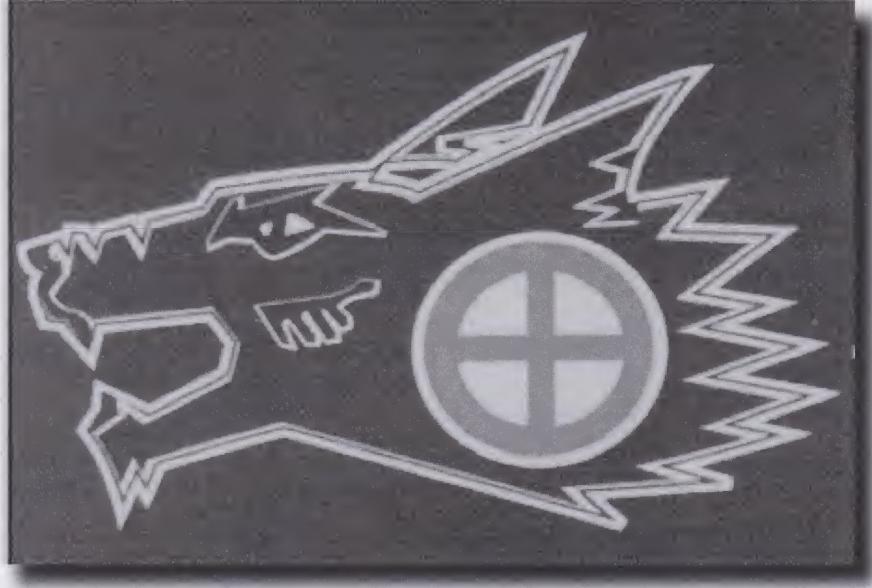

O'Brien posed the question; "Why the Need for a Youth Section?" and claimed that the reasons why there was a need for a Youth section within the National Socialist Movement was self explanatory. He stated, "A look around the inner-cities will soon cure any lingering doubts. White youth are on the edge of a never ending pit of decadence and degeneracy, Which is why we must act now!"

The situation in 2017 is even worse than when O'Brien wrote those observations, he could not have foreseen the accelerated levels of Third World immigration into Britain, the massive concentrations of non-white communities colonising entire districts of England and Wales major urban centres; the spread of non-whites into Scotland and Northern Ireland; the media encouraged race-mixing and inter-racial relationships; the powerful political influence of the homosexual lobby, and the corrosive influence of recreational drug use. British society has become ever more decadent and degraded in the years since Paul O'Brien wrote the Youth Movement booklet.

Broadsword argues that there is still time to reverse the dreadful slide into oblivion for White British youth. There is still time to develop a youth element to the NS counter-culture, and to ensure the future of the White British Folk by activating and engaging enough determined teenagers to the cause of National Socialism.

BUILDING AND DEVELOPING A BRITISH NATIONAL SOCIALIST YOUTH ORGANISATION

There are many obstacles in modern British society that hinder the recruitment and ideological development of a racial Nationalist or National Socialist youth organisation.

Leaving aside the influences of the mass media, popular entertainment and the compulsive lure of social media and computer gaming, British youngsters are subjected to a daily barrage of 'political correctness' and multi-culturalist propaganda every day at school or at college. By the time they reach their mid-teens, most British youngsters have been conditioned to accept a multi-racial, multi-cultural society without questioning it and are programmed not to respond to racial or ethnic differences.

The Prevent programme operated by the Home Office utilises a whole range of so-called 'anti-extremist' measures to monitor young people suspected of becoming involved in what the Government terms, "Far-Right extremism", which basically means any nationalist group or political party beyond UKIP.

The Prevent programme has numerous official bodies operating under its umbrella, teachers, college staff, social workers, and youth workers. All levels of education have been primed to spot and report any kind of unwanted political activity and where possible specialist personnel will be drafted in to isolate the identified youngsters and to re-direct them away from association with any kind of ideologically motivated or racially aware organisations or political activists.

The Government has already demonstrated in December 2016 that it will clamp down hard on a youth orientated NS street organisation, by its unprecedented banning of National Action and its proscription of National Action as a 'terrorist' organisation.

The greatest barriers that British National Socialists and racial Nationalist activists face is how to break through the mental conditioning that White British youth have undergone throughout their formal education, and how to break through the barriers created by modern consumerism, popular culture, the fashion industry, and social media.

Most British teenagers and older children are cut off from positive ideas about their own ethnic and racial heritage by the fog of multi-culturalist propaganda and mis-information.

The British education system follows a curriculum designed to be 'inclusive' and encourages a neo-liberal mindset, obsessively targetting anyone who rejects any aspect of 'diversity' and force-feeding young minds with acceptance of 'differences', the celebration of minoritities of all types and the need for 'community cohesion'.

The challenge for British National Socialism is not only to break through those barriers but also to demonstrate to British youngsters that there is an alternative to multi-culturalism, that they should be proud to be White British, and that National Socialism is relevant to them and their lives.

The building and development of a British NS Youth movement is an essential part of the counter-culture that the British National Socialist Movement is seeking to build. It is a huge task, but not an impossible task. There is within every White British youngster an inbred desire to identify with their own people.

All youth has an inbuilt need for rebellion and a break with the constraints of society, so what better way to rebel against conventional thinking than to rebel against the diktats of multi-culturalism and to embrace a lifestyle rooted in a radical ideological alternative?

The first step is to develop and circulate meaningful propaganda aimed at the age range of 12 years to 20 years of age, utilising all media formats, with a special emphasis on social media outlets.

This information needs to be clear, easily understood and attention-grabbing. In the initial public information stage there is no need to complicate matters by indulging in deep and meaningful explanations or detailed points of ideological importance.

Immigration, race, ethnic tensions and the migrant crisis are all foundation blocks on which to build the appeal to British youth. For many youngsters living in multi-racial urban areas, often finding themselves the ethnic minority in schools and neighbourhoods, the realities of inter racial conflicts will be an everyday reality. They will know that in order to survive they have to keep together with fellow British whites and avoid being drawn into direct confrontation with black or Asian youth gangs.

The proud and defiant anti-multi-culturalist message of National Socialism will strike a cord with these besieged youngsters, and will offer a strong lifeline to those who feel the most isolated and vulnerable.

It will also provide them with a mechanism to fight back, to challenge the situation and conditions that oppresses them and to be proud of their ethnic identity, their customs, traditions and heritage.

The most important thing for them is the opportunity to have an identity that is strong and vital, to be part of something that is greater and marks them out from the multi-racial rabble that surrounds them.

They can be made to feel special, to be part of something that excludes the non-white others and shows them that there is a different way to live, a better set of rules to live by and challenges the system that seeks to submerge them in a 'One World' melting-pot.

sites and social media) causing a head ache for the Left and the powers that be..”

That is not to say that immigration and race related issues will be ignored, far from it, but social issues such as homelessness and the lack of social housing can be effectively highlighted and combined with attacks on immigration and the influx of asylum-seekers and ‘refugees’.

Why is scarce housing provision being provided for these new arrivals when poor British families are being kept in homeless hostels and temporary bed and breakfast accommodation?

Why are so many ex-servicemen, veterans of service in Afghanistan, Iraq and the Gulf War living on the streets while local councils are providing housing, health and welfare services for refugees from Afghanistan, Iraq and Syria?

These are the areas of social issues that British Movement can successfully build local and regional campaigns around, all types of propaganda can be geared to these issues.

BM can build up support for our ideas, our National Socialist principles and political solutions through a massive, long term propaganda campaign. A rolling programme of propaganda which exploits every type of information outlet. BM can create influence by flooding every corner of the United Kingdom with British National Socialist propaganda.

Saturation of both urban centres and rural towns with British Movement literature and other printed propaganda material will create the impression that BM is ‘everywhere’ in the minds of the general public. The ordinary, non-political citizen must at least become familiar with the British Movement name and recognise our symbols of the Sunwheel and the rising Phoenix and immediately register in their minds that BM is anti-immigration and anti-multiculturalism if nothing else.

This association of political direction can be built on by BM’s on-line and social media campaigns.

Propaganda as Dr Josef Goebbels said,

“This is the secret of propaganda: Those who are to be persuaded by it should be completely immersed in the ideas of the propaganda, without ever noticing that they are being immersed in it.”

Europe was being halted.

The French Presidential elections on Sunday 8th of May 2017 were very revealing and should serve as an object lesson for all racial Nationalists and National Socialists in both Britain and Europe as to how the System protects itself and the so-called ‘neo-liberal democracy’ from a direct populist or nationalist threat.

Marine Le Pen found herself facing not just Macron and his new political centre-left party, En Marche, but all the combined resources of every anti-Front National party and pressure group.

The same forces will muster again in June 2017 during the French general elections.

The objective of many leftists and multi-culturalists is not to win votes for their own political party or interest group, but to ensure the defeat of the hated “Far-Right” by whatever means.

This is the quick sand of electoral politics that British Movement seeks to avoid being sucked into, such election campaigns soak up precious financial resources, divert and exhaust the man-power and enthusiasm of members, supporters and other volunteers, opens up the Movement to infiltration by the State, to interference by the agencies of the State, and drains the Movement’s ability to campaign effectively and opens up the Movement to direct attack by the more violent elements of the political opposition.

Until things change radically, the Great Task Ahead does not include fighting in elections.

As has often been stated in the pages of Broadsword magazine, the key such slogan has to be David Lane’s outstanding modern interpretation of basic National Socialist ideology, the Fourteen Words.

If nothing else, getting widespread recognition of the Fourteen Words and its meaning across throughout the huge body of disaffected White British people is the key in the door for building a deeper understanding of racial politics.

British National Socialists must use every opportunity to build that recognition of the Fourteen Words.

GREECE
The Golden Dawn
Hail Victory Comrades !

On the evening of the 29th of January 2017, thousands of Hellenic Nationalists and patriots, (including delegations from Germany, Poland and other European nations) gathered to honour the deaths of three Greek officers who were defending the Aegean islands from Turkish aggression in 1996. The Imia event, There are more videos and photos on the Golden Dawn website. The big boss of the World Jewish Congress, (WJC - ZOG) the billionaire R. Lauter, visited our country last week (late January 2017) to celebrate the ' Day of the Holocaust', whatever that means, with the local Jewish Kehilla and mainstream politicians. He explicitly mentioned our movement, Golden Dawn as a real threat to democracy in Greece ! and a threat to human rights and called for (ordered) a mobilization of 'democratic forces' (Jewish pawns, henchmen etc) against 'racism', 'anti-semitism' etc etc. They really are alarmed by the strengthening of our influence and activities among the pure Hellenic population. That is why they try, through the commissariat of the public TV directorship to ban our party, the Golden Dawn completely from the TV screens on a national basis. Dear Broadsword

The British National Socialist Movement's policy if not contesting elections is both realistic and logical. The ballot-box is not opening to us - but it is an obstacle. It graphically symbolises this fraudulent Democracy. Elections, in general, are rigged against us, both overtly and covertly. Why bourgeois Nationalists cannot see through this is beyond my comprehension. Let the slogan be: BOYCOTT THE BALLOT BOX ! National Socialists must prepare for the day when racial confrontations break out and Democracy breaks down. For that will be the outcome of more Third World immigration.

Adolf Hitler's world-view has infinitely more relevance to this 21st century than that of Karl Marx and his Utopian nonsense.

Hello Patriots

After living in Wolverhampton most of my life I have been forced out due to the influx of ethnics into my neighbourhood, and I have moved to the Fylde coast. It is remarkably White here, but there are a few Chinese (where did they come from?)

Anyway, Wolverhampton, Walsall, Birmingham, and Dudley are lost. How dare the traitor politicians give our country away. The question I was going to ask, is," What is the Movement's view on the 'Buy to Let" policy?" 'Buy to Let' is destroying decent White neighbourhoods and turning them into ethnic hell holes, where no decent English person would want to live.

Which is what happened to my neighbourhood. When I was preparing to leave Wolverhampton I went to the council offices to pay my outstanding council tax and I was the only White English person in that building. That is how bad it has got. When are the British people going to wake up? There is not much time left. Racial Regards L.B.

FROM BEHIND THE BARS

I have been a prisoner for close to ten years, and I have seen so much of prison life and what goes on with that. One thing that I have seen that stands out most is the taking over of British prisons by radical Muslim gangs, such as outfits called 'The Muslim Boys'. or the more hard line, 'Allah Brotherhood'. These are not street gangs, these are inside prisons. Gangs inside are nothing new, but this is new and much darker, it includes military type training on the yard. Even the beating of White prisoners for cooking or eating pork and the forced conversion of none Muslims. You might think that the Prison system would put a stop to this, but we have a new breed of politically correct prison officers. Long gone are the days of Right-wing 'Screws', we now have limp wrist pen-pushers who will look the other way to this extremism out of fear that if they act they could have a "Race Comp." (formal complaint of racism) put against them.

Readers of Broadsword might say, "What has this got to do with me?" But I would say to any White British man or woman that the prison gates will open and this extremist army will march out on to your streets.

Be warned! A Nationalist prisoner.

BROADSWORD COMMENT

Here at Broadsword we receive many requests from White Nationalist prisoners in the USA, often requesting correspondence with British racial Nationalists and National Socialists.

In the next issue of Broadsword we will reproduce a series of letters from White POW's held in the US penal system.

SCOTLAND

The Great Challenge For British National Socialism

As the various organisations of British racial Nationalism prepare to campaign in a post-Brexit Britain, the greatest challenge facing them is the need to make a significant political impact in Scotland.

A BRITISH MOVEMENT PERSPECTIVE

British Movement does not seek an electoral route anywhere in the United Kingdom under the current political system but believes that there is a need to build a British National Socialist counter-culture as part of the development of a grass-roots NS mass movement. In Scotland that means challenging the moribund political mainstream where the dominant influences have traditionally been the Labour Party, the Labour-leaning Trade Unions, and in recent decades the false nationalism of the Scottish National Party.

In relation to the rest of Britain, Scotland has a small population compared to its land mass.

The majority of Scotland's urban population is concentrated in the towns and cities of the Central Belt and along Scotland's eastern coast. The towns and villages of Western Scotland, the Borders and Lowlands, the Highlands, (with the exception of Inverness), Western coast, the Hebrides and Northern Isles are frequently over-looked by political campaigns.

British Movement argues that there is real scope to awaken the traditionally patriotic populations of Scots living outside the Central Belt and East coast, to build on their racial and ethnic awareness and generate substantial opposition to a multi-cultural, multi-racial future for Scotland.

Keeping the United Kingdom Together In The Face of the Marxist SNP Con Trick

Too many Scots have been taken in by the false nationalism of the Scottish National Party, which is truly nationalist in name only and is ideologically a democratic-socialist political party closer to the extreme Left-wing of the Labour Party and its fellow travellers on the Marxist fringe and in the Green Party. In order to make any political headway in Scotland the priority has to be to challenge and expose the true nature of the SNP, its Leftist agenda, its commitment to multiculturalism and a multi-racial Britain, its pro-European Union position and the ideological programme of its leaders.

The SNP accepts all ethnic minority applicants into its membership and accepts the presence of large colonies of non-white immigrants into Scotland's major cities.

How can the SNP claim to represent Scottish culture and heritage when it parades the presence in its ranks of non-white SNP 'activists', Asian businessmen wearing tartan turbans, or even Pakistani SNP councillors taking their oaths of office in Urdu because they lack sufficient command of spoken English?

As far as the SNP is concerned Scottish heritage, history and traditions are merely window dressing to convince patriotic Scots that the SNP represents Scotland's best interests. Meanwhile the SNP loudly denounces the Westminster based government of the United Kingdom as being counter to Scotland's future and argues for Scotland to become an independent nation. The reality is that once Scotland has gained the much-trumpeted 'independence' from the Union of the United Kingdom, the SNP are prepared to take a minor role as part of the European Union, embracing the pan-Europeonist position of a future United States of Europe, borderless, an open, unified economy under the Euro, directed by Brussels and Strasburg, all sense of Scottish 'independence' surrendered to the bureaucrats of the Greater European Union. Is that EU satellite-state future a true reflection of genuine Scottish Nationalism?

KEEPING SCOTLAND IN THE UNITED KINGDOM GENERATING RACIAL AWARENESS IN SCOTLAND OPPOSING A MULTI-CULTURAL FUTURE FOR SCOTLAND

These are the three foundation stones upon which British Movement believes a British National Socialist movement can build across Scotland. The first step has to be the growth and promotion of an NS and racial Nationalist propaganda campaign throughout Scotland, initially to draw attention to the presence of the Movement, secondly to generate awareness of the Movement agenda and thirdly to begin the serious work of challemging and undermining the support base of both the SNP and the Scottish Labour Party.

Beyond the propaganda campaign the development of Movement meetings, rallies and activities in all parts of Scotland leading to the establishment of specific Movement projects.

By necessity these are long term goals, but are clear and determined aims and objectives.

END NOTES

January 2017
MEIN KAMPF STILL A BEST SELLER

Once again 'Mein Kampf' has returned as a best seller in Germany. The neo-liberal journalists in Europe's news media were thrown into a mild state of panic by the news that "Mein Kampf" had achieved best-seller status in Germany for the first time since 1945.

The Institute of Contemporary History in Munich stated that 85,000 copies of the new 'academic, annotated edition of 'Mein Kampf' have been sold since the official reprint went on sales in January 2016.

Such has been the level of demand for the new German language edition of the book that the publishers are now into their sixth print run in just over a 12 month period and there is no sign of a drop in demand.

Prior to May 1945, 'Mein Kampf' was published by the official Zentral Verlag der NSDAP publishing house in Munich.

After the collapse of the Third Reich, the Allied Occupation forces seized all the assets of the NSDAP and shut down all branches of the National Socialist Party, declaring the movement illegal. Thousands of copies of 'Mein Kampf' were destroyed over the following years, and in 1946 the American Occupation authorities turned over the rights to 'Mein Kampf' to the new Bavarian state government. The Bavarian state simply banned the publication of Adolf Hitler's book for over 70 years until finally granting the Institute for Contemporary History permission to print an initial 4,000 copies of an 'academic' German language edition in late 2015. Copies became publicly available in January 2016 and the re-printing and sales just escalated. 'Mein Kampf' was back on the shelves after over 70 years of silence.

Of course journalists were quick to point out that all the purchases were down to academic interest and that, "those who bought the book tended to be customers interested in politics and history as well as educators, not reactionaries or rightwing radicals."

However, this is too simple an explanation for the record number of sales and the Bavarian justice ministry reacted swiftly when a certain 'Far-right publisher' announced their intention to produce what they called, "an unabridged edition without the good guy comments", the ministry said it would prosecute anyone who tries to publish the book without critical annotations under hate speech laws.

The news of the best-seller status of 'Mein Kampf' has not gone down well with German anti-racist and Zionist organisations, Levi Salomon a spokesman for the German Jewish Forum for Democracy and Against Anti-Semitism, denounced 'Mein Kampf' as "a book of hatred", and the Bavarian state librarian condemned the re-publication of 'Mein Kampf' because he considered the book, "too dangerous for the general public".

Prior to the official re-printing of a carefully edited and annotated 'academic' edition in January 2016, all copies held by public or university libraries kept German language editions of 'Mein Kampf' under controlled library access.

Strict rules prevented the general public from reading the book and the Bavarian state library kept original pre-1945 editions in a "poison cabinet", readers and researchers were formally vetted before being allowed to even see the books.

Whatever the truth is about the best-seller status of 'Mein Kampf' between January 2016 and January 2017, there can be no denying that interest in the writings of Adolf Hitler and German National Socialism is very much alive and no matter how carefully edited or controlled, the message of National Socialism and Adolf Hitler's thoughts on racial theory, politics and economics are reaching out once again to a new and growing readership.

OLYMPIC ATHLETE 'Mo' Farah Still a 'BRITISH' Sporting Hero?

Olympic Runner and Gold medalist Mohammed Farah now known to the British public as 'Sir Mo Farah' following his recent knighthood for sporting excellence, community work etc etc etc.

Often presented as "refugee made good", proud to represent his adopted country, often feted as a shining example of diversity, a role model for ethnic minority and a symbol of multi-cultural Britain.

The media delight in featuring Farah clad in the Union Flag, the flag of Britain draped around the shoulders of this 'British' sporting legend. How many of Farah's extremely gullible fans in Britain known than in reality Farah and his family now live in Portland, Oregon, USA, although Farah spends periods of the year at his sports training facility in Ethiopia.

Mo Farah was upset by President Donald Trump's recent ban on Islamic travellers from specific countries entering the USA.

Farah was quoted in the press as saying that he was afraid that he would be refused entry back into the USA if he left the States to compete abroad, because he was a UK citizen born in Somalia and is a Muslim. Interesting that he claims to have settled in the UK as a child of eight years of age because according to some media accounts over the past decade he was stated to have entered Britain "illegally" aged nine, ten or even eleven years of age, depending on whose version of Farah's life was briefing the press.

Farah came to Britain from Somalia as a 'refugee' or as an 'asylum-seeker' depending which journalist is telling his story.
